ALABAMA

Veterinarians must report to the “proper authorities any grossly inhumane treatment to animals of which he or she has direct knowledge.”¹ Counties or municipalities may appoint trained agents to address cruelty.² These governmental agents may remove dogs or cats from their present locations or order that the owner of the animal to provide certain care for the animal at the owner’s expense.³ The county or municipality or the employee or agent of the county or municipality are not liable for actions taken in good faith.⁴

ALASKA

There are no mandated reporters of animal cruelty. State troopers, municipal police, and village or regional public safety officers handle animal abuse matters. However, the law states that anyone who believes that cruelty to an animal has taken place or is taking place may file a complaint with a public or private animal control agency or organization, the department, or a peace officer.⁵ An agency or organization or the department may refer the complaint to a peace officer.⁶

ARIZONA

Veterinarians are mandated reporters of dog fighting or animal abuse.⁷ A veterinarian must report in writing to local law enforcement agency in the county where the veterinarian practices within 48 hours of any examination or treatment administered to any dog or any animal which the veterinarian reasonably suspects or believes has participated in a dog fight or any animal that the veterinarian reasonably suspects or believes has been abused.⁸ The report must contain the breed and description of the dog or any animal together with the name and address of the owner.⁹
A veterinarian must report in writing any suspected cases of livestock abuse to the division of animal services of the Arizona department of agriculture.¹⁰ The report must be made within 48 hours of treatment or examination and must include the breed and description of the animal and the name and address of the owner.¹¹ Veterinarians who file a good faith report are immune from civil liability.¹²

ARKANSAS

Any person who reports in good faith a suspected incident of cruelty to animals or aggravated cruelty to a dog, cat, or equine to a local law enforcement agency or to the Department of Arkansas State Police is immune from civil or criminal liability for reporting the incident.13 A licensed veterinarian or person acting at the direction of a licensed veterinarian in Arkansas is immune from criminal or civil liability for decisions made or services rendered within the subchapter of law or from suit for his or her part in an investigation of cruelty to animals.14 A veterinarian or person acting at the direction of a licensed veterinarian who participates or reports in bad faith or with malice is not immune from liability.15

CALIFORNIA

Veterinarians and registered veterinary technicians are mandated reporters.16 They must report to the “appropriate law enforcement authorities of the county, city, or city and county in which it occurred.”17 No licensee shall incur any civil liability as a result of making any report of a violation of subdivisions (a), (b), and (c) of Section 597 of the Penal Code.18 Reports are made to the law enforcement authority in the county, city, or city and county in which the abuse, cruelty, or fighting occurred.19

Animal control officers or humane society officers must report child abuse.20 They must report as soon as practicably possible by telephone and by fax or electronically and must send a report within 36 hours of receiving the information concerning the incident.21 Any employee of a county child or adult protective services agency may report animal cruelty, abuse, or neglect and the report may be made within two working days of receiving the information as a written report or by telephone.22

COLORADO

Licensed veterinarians during the course of attending or treating an animal, with reasonable cause to know or suspect that an animal has been subjected to cruelty or subject to animal fighting must make a report of animal cruelty or animal fighting to a local law enforcement agency or the bureau of animal protection.23 A veterinarian who makes a good faith report is

Officers and agents of the state bureau of animal protection and animal control officers must report child abuse to a county department or local law enforcement agency.\textsuperscript{26}

CONNECTICUT

Animal control officers with reasonable cause to suspect that an animal observed in the course of the officer’s employment is being or has been harmed, neglected, or treated cruelly must make a written report to the Commission of the Department of Agriculture no later than 48 hours after filing a verified petition with the Superior Court.\textsuperscript{27} Also, employees of the Department of Children and Families must report all cases of suspected animal mistreatment.\textsuperscript{28} Department of Children and Families employees, in the course of employment and with reasonable cause to suspect that an animal is or has been harmed, neglected, or treated cruelly, must make a verbal report to the Commission of Agriculture, followed by a written report within 48 hours and must include: the address where the animal was observed and the name and address of the owner or other person responsible for the care of the animals; the name and description of the animal; the nature and extent of harm, neglect, or cruelty to the animal, and the approximate date and time such harm, neglect, or cruelty was suspected.\textsuperscript{29}

DELAWARE

Veterinarians are required to protect the privacy of their clients by not willfully revealing privileged communications, but there are exceptions if they need to share “medical information regarding diagnosis or treatment of an animal when required by law, subpoena, or court order or when it becomes necessary to protect the health and welfare of other individuals or animals” or “veterinary medical information between veterinarians and peace officers, humane society officers, or animal control officers who are acting to protect the welfare of individuals and animals.”\textsuperscript{30}

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Veterinarians are not required to report. Humane officers or any agency charged with the enforcement of animal cruelty laws must report known or suspected abused or neglected children.

An “animal control officer or Illinois Department of Agriculture Bureau of Animal Health and Welfare field investigator,” with “reasonable cause to believe that a child known to them in their professional or official capacity may be an abused child or neglected child shall immediately report or cause a report to be made to the Department.”

Mandated reporters within the mandated child law who believe that an animal is being abused or neglected are not barred from reporting animal abuse or neglect to the Department of Agriculture’s Bureau of Animal Health and Welfare.

Any investigation specialists, intact family specialists, and placement specialists employed by the Department of Children and Family Services who reasonably believe that an animal observed by them when in their professional or official capacity is being abused or neglected must immediately make a written or oral report to the Department of Agriculture’s Bureau of Animal Health and Welfare. The “Department of Children and Family Services may not discipline an Investigation Specialist, an Intact Family Specialist, or a Placement Specialist for failing to make such a report if the Specialist determines that making the report would interfere with the performance of his or her child welfare protection duties.”

An animal control officer, Department investigator, or approved humane investigator with reasonable cause to suspect or believe that a child is being abused or neglected or in danger of being abused or neglected must immediately make a written or oral report to the Department of Children and Family Services. Investigation Specialists, Intact Family Specialists, and Placement Specialists employed by the Department of Children and Family Services who reasonably believe that an animal observed by them when in their professional or official capacity is being abused or neglected must immediately make a written or oral report to the Department of Agriculture’s Bureau of Animal Health and Welfare. The Department of Children and Families may not discipline an Investigation Specialist, an Intact Family Specialist, or a Placement Specialist for failing to make such a report if the Specialist determines that making the report would interfere with the performance of his or her child welfare protection duties.

There is immunity for civil and criminal liability for making reports, except for willful and wanton misconduct. The identity of any person who reports animal abuse or neglect must be Veterinarians must file a report with the Department if they observe or are presented with an animal or animals for the treatment of aggravated cruelty or torture. When filing the report, veterinarians must furnish the owner’s name, the date of the receipt of the animals involved, including a microchip number if applicable. Veterinarians are immune from liability for good faith reports. Also, veterinarians who are presented with an animal for treatment of injuries or wounds resulting from fighting, the veterinarians must file a report with the Department, and they are immune from civil or criminal liability for good faith reports.

INDIANA

A veterinarian or veterinary technician who reports in good faith and in the normal course of business a suspected incident of animal cruelty to a law enforcement officer is immune from civil or criminal actions brought for reporting the incident. [SEE BELOW FOR CPS X-R]

IOWA

There is no mandated reporting of animal abuse, no immunity for making a report, and no cross-reporting.

KANSAS

A veterinarian is required to report cruel or inhumane treatment of animals if the veterinarian has direct knowledge of such treatment. Generally, a veterinarian cannot disclose any information concerning a veterinarian’s care of an animal except on written authorization or other waiver by the veterinarian’s client or on appropriate court order or subpoena. This privilege is waived if reporting cruel or inhumane treatment of any animal to federal, state, or local governmental agencies, and other circumstances.

KENTUCKY

Veterinarians cannot violate the confidential relationship between a veterinarian and the veterinarian’s client. The exception to this rule is if the veterinarian receives a written authorization or other waiver from the client or by court order or subpoena. A veterinarian who

MINNESOTA

A veterinarian must report known or suspected cases of abuse, cruelty or neglect.84 Any person is not liable for rendering humane assistance to an injured pet or companion animal.85

MISSISSIPPI

Veterinarians who report in good faith and in the normal course of business a suspected incident of animal cruelty to the proper authorities are immune from civil or criminal liability.86 Also, a veterinarian or any person acting at the direction of a veterinarian, who in good faith and acting without malice, participates in the investigation of an alleged offense of simple or aggravated cruelty to a dog or cat, or makes the decision or render services regarding the care of a dog or cat that is involved in the investigation, is immune from liability.87 Any person who in good faith and acting without malice, reports a suspected incident of simple cruelty to a dog or cat, or aggravated cruelty to a dog or cat, to a local animal control, protection or welfare organization, a local law enforcement agency, or the Mississippi Department of Public Safety, shall be immune from civil and criminal liability for reporting the incident.88

MISSOURI

There is no cross-reporting or immunity for reporting. The veterinarian rules of professional conduct state that the reporting of animal abuse or neglect must be done to appropriate authorities.89 As such, veterinarians are not barred from revealing confidential, proprietary, or privileged fact or data or any other sensitive information contained in a patient’s medical records or as otherwise obtained in a professional capacity without the prior consent of the client.90

MONTANA

There is no mandated reporting of animal abuse, no immunity for making a report, and no cross-reporting.

NEBRASKA

A veterinarian or a veterinary technician who, in the scope of his or her employment and while acting in his or her professional capacity, observes or is involved in an incident which leads the veterinarian or veterinary technician to reasonably suspect that an animal has been abandoned, cruelly neglected, or cruelly mistreated, must report the treatment to an entity that investigates

Veterinarians must report suspected cases of aggravated animal abuse to a local law enforcement agency in the county where the veterinarian practices within twenty-four (24) hours of any examination or treatment of the animal. The report must contain the breed and description of the animal and the name and address of the owner. A veterinarian is immune from civil liability for a report made in good faith.

OREGON

Veterinarians must report aggravated animal abuse. Veterinarians and veterinary technicians may report known or reasonably believed abandoned, neglected, or abused animals to peace officers, animal control officers, or officers of private organizations devoted to humane treatment of animals, and they are immune from civil or criminal liability. Veterinarians must report to the Dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine at Oregon State University any incidences of treating animals that have been injured by a trapping device.

Reports must include: (a) The name and description of each animal involved; (b) The address and telephone number of the owner or other person responsible for the care of the animal; (c) The nature and extent of the suspected aggravated animal abuse; (d) Any evidence of previous aggravated animal abuse; (e) Any explanation given for the suspected aggravated animal abuse; and (f) Any other information that the person making the report believes may be helpful in establishing the cause of the suspected aggravated animal abuse or the identity of the person causing the aggravated animal abuse. Veterinarians with reasonable grounds and who act in good faith and make a report are not liable in any civil or criminal proceeding.

Generally, a public or private official with reasonable cause to believe that an animal has suffered aggravated animal abuse may immediately report to a law enforcement agency, either verbally or in writing. The official is not liable in civil or criminal proceedings if the official acts in good faith and has reasonable grounds for making the report. This also applies to social workers who are employees of the Department of Human Services, and they also have immunity.

INDIANA (2018)

IC 31-33-8 Chapter 8. Investigation of Reports of Suspected Child Abuse or Neglect
IC 31-33-8-7.5 Reporting of observed or suspected animal cruelty, abandonment, or neglect

Sec. 7.5. (a) If, during the assessment, a caseworker observes, or has reason to believe, that an animal is a victim of animal cruelty, abandonment, or neglect, the caseworker may make a report of the observed or suspected animal cruelty, abandonment, or neglect to:
(1) the local law enforcement agency; or
(2) the local animal control officer.

(b) The information provided in a report under subsection (a) must include the following:
(1) A name and description of the animal and the animal’s condition.
(2) The name and contact number, if known, of the owner or custodian of the animal.
(3) The address or location of the observed or suspected animal cruelty, abandonment, or neglect.
(4) The nature and apparent extent of the observed or suspected animal cruelty, abandonment, or neglect.

(c) This section does not impose a duty or obligation on the caseworker to investigate known or suspected animal cruelty, abandonment, or neglect.

(d) A caseworker who makes a report of an animal that may be a victim of animal cruelty, abandonment, or neglect is immune from any civil or criminal liability unless the caseworker made the report as a result of gross negligence or willful and wanton misconduct.

(e) The identity of any caseworker who makes a report under this section is confidential.

(f) This section does not expand or limit other laws concerning confidentiality requirements.

IC 31-33-6-1 Immunity from civil or criminal liability

Sec. 1. (a) Except as provided in subsection (b) and section 2 of this chapter, a person, other than a person accused of child abuse or neglect, who:
(1) makes or causes to be made a report of a child who may be a victim of child abuse or neglect;
(2) is a health care provider and detains a child for purposes of causing photographs, x-rays, or a medical examination to be made under IC 31-33-10;
(3) makes any other report of a child who may be a victim of child abuse or neglect;
(4) participates in or assists with an investigation by the department or a law enforcement agency resulting from a report that a child may be a victim of child abuse or neglect, including by transferring photographs, x-rays, or medical examination records completed under subdivision (2);
(5) is a health care provider and provides professional intervention resulting from a report that a child may be a victim of child abuse or neglect, including:
(A) providing care or treatment to the child;
(B) participating in a case review concerning the child;
(C) providing advice or consultation concerning the child;
(D) disclosing medical records and other health information concerning the child, in accordance with federal or state law governing the disclosure of medical records;
(E) providing information to a child fatality review team; or
(F) recommending judicial action concerning a child; or
(6) participates, including testifying as a witness, in any judicial proceeding or other proceeding:
(A) resulting from a report that a child may be a victim of child abuse or neglect; or
(B) relating to the subject matter of the report;

is immune from any civil or criminal liability that might otherwise be imposed because of such actions, even if the reported child abuse or neglect is classified by the department as unsubstantiated.
FLORIDA MANDATE UPDATE (2021)
SB 96, enacted in 2021, requires full two-way cross-reporting between child protective services workers and animal control officers. The new Florida Statute, Sec. 39.208, is based upon the premise that “The Legislature recognizes that animal cruelty of any kind is a type of interpersonal violence that often co-occurs with child abuse and other forms of family violence. Early identification of animal cruelty is an important tool in: safeguarding children from abuse, abandonment and neglect; providing needed support to families; and protecting animals.”

Under the new provisions:
• Anyone who investigates child abuse, abandonment or neglect and who, within the scope of his or her employment, knows or has reasonable cause to suspect animal abuse occurring at the same address shall report such knowledge or suspicion within 72 hours to a local animal control agency.
• Child protective services personnel are presumed to have made such reports or engaged in inter-agency collaboration in good faith and are immune from civil and criminal liability and administrative sanctions.
• Anyone who investigates animal cruelty who, within the scope of his or her employment, knows or has reasonable cause to suspect that a child is abused, abandoned or neglected or is in need of supervision and care shall report such knowledge or suspicion to the state central abuse hotline immediately.
• Failure to report, either by child protection or animal control investigators, is subject to penalties.
• The Department of Children and Families and statewide animal welfare and control agencies will develop a one-hour training course for all child protective investigators and animal control officers on the accurate and timely identification and reporting of child and animal maltreatment and the interconnectedness of such abuse.
